WELCOME FROM THE CHAIRMAN

Normally my message would be one of welcome to our supporters, but as Covid continues to impact our lives and our games, the welcomes are largely on hold. It is however most welcome that our Championships can take place again this year and that we can welcome at least a limited number of people into our grounds to see them.

As the vaccination programme continues and the number of cases decrease, I am hopeful that with continued vigilance and care, consideration will be given to increased attendances as the season progresses.

Our Leinster Senior Hurling Championship gets underway this weekend with two interesting quarter finals. Dublin take on Antrim in Navan on Saturday while Wexford and Laois battle for a semi-final berth in UPMC Nowlan Park later in the day.

Dublin have had a mixed League campaign with wins over both Laois and Antrim while succumbing to Kilkenny, Clare and Wexford. They will obviously be hoping to repeat their League defeat of Antrim in Páirc Tailteann and advance to the semi-finals.

The Saffron's League campaign was encouraging. They opened with a fine win over Clare before losing to Kilkenny and Dublin before bouncing back to earn a thrilling draw with Wexford and finished with victory over Laois. They will be keen to build on this momentum as they make a welcome return to the Leinster Championship.

Wexford too enjoyed a good League campaign with wins over Laois, Clare and Dublin as well as the aforementioned draw with Antrim, suffering only a single defeat to Kilkenny. They will now have an eye on a semi-final place.

Laois failed to register a win in the League but showed improvement as the season progressed. They will have a Division 1 relegation play-off in August against Westmeath but will no doubt be totally focussed on the Championship now and on lowering Wexford's colours.

I want to wish all players and managements well as our Championships commence and thank them for their continued co-operation during these challenging times. I also want to thank our referees Liam Gordon and Thomas Walsh and their officials for their commitment to our games.

Bord Gáis Energy, Centra and Littlewoods Ireland continue to sponsor the Senior Hurling Championship and I want to acknowledge their ongoing support during what is a difficult time for the Association. It is much appreciated.

After an unprecedented 2020 and an end of year that was unusually illuminated by Championship action, it is wonderful that after a trying start to 2021 we can once again look forward to our provincial competitions. As I said earlier if we continue to stay safe and vigilant then I look forward to meeting many more of our loyal supporters in our grounds as the Summer progresses.

Bí sábháilte.

Antrim ONES TO WATCH

Ciaran Clarke

Age: 28

Club: McQuillan GAC Ballycastle

The Ballycastle man has rose to prominence during the Allianz League and arrives into today's encounter on the back of picking up the PWC GAA/ GPA Player of the Month award for May. This is due in no small part to his impressive display against Clare where he finished with an individual tally of 1-11. He is sure to have been one of the many to occupy Mattie Kenny's thoughts in the lead up to this game.

Conal Cunning

Age: 22

Club: Na Fianna

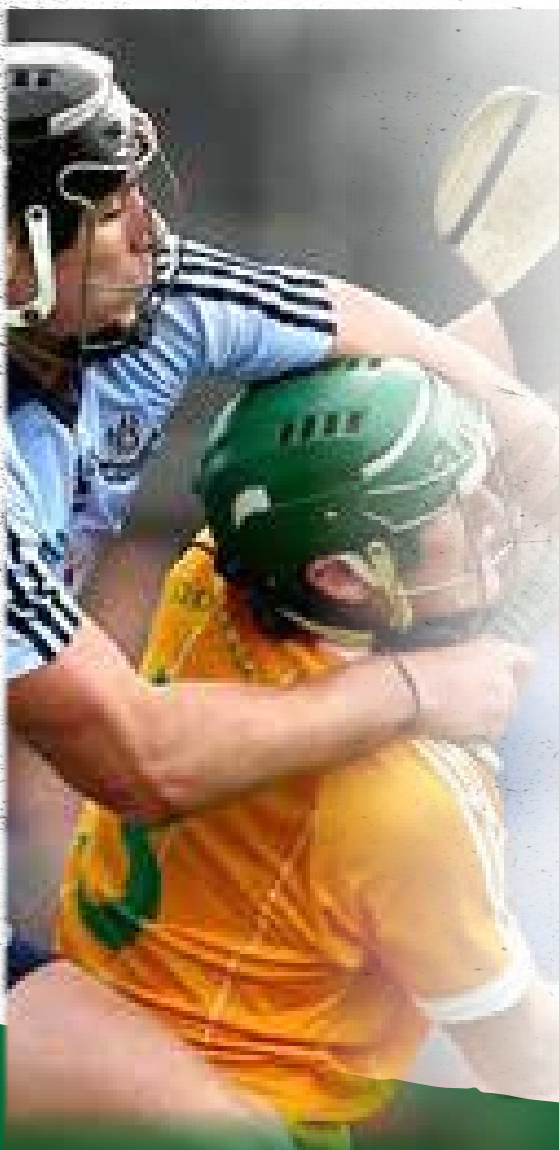

Over the last two seasons in particular Burke has established himself as Dublin's most potent scoring threat. On the back of a whopping 1-16 against Laois in their opening Leinster Championship game last season the Na Fianna man shows no sign of slowing down. He finished the Allianz National League as top scorer in Division 1 with 1-55 to his name. Dublin will be hoping that he brings that type of form

Karl is on the Mark as Antrim pip Dublin

In phase 3 of the 2010 Senior Hurling All Ireland Qualifier series Antrim travelled to Croke Park to lock horns with Dublin. Few gave the Saffron men much chance, as Dublin dispatched of them with relative ease in the previous year's Leinster Championship. Allied to this was the fact that Anthony Daly's charges arrived into the contest on the back of an impressive performance against his native Clare just 7 days previous.

These forewarnings about the Northerners chances were not laid to rest when after just 20 seconds of the start Joey Boland fired over an impressive but all too easy score. However, from here Antrim settled nicely to their task, as both sides traded scores in the sunshine to leave them two apiece. In the eight-minute alarm bells would have begun to ring in Dublin supporter's minds as PJ O'Connell got the better of two Dublin defenders to lash the ball home from close range. This was quickly followed by a point from the ever-accurate Liam Watson to push Dinny Cahill's charges into 1-03 to 0-2 lead.

This served to wake Dublin from a seemingly momentary slumber as Alan McCrabbe saw a chance of a goal thwarted only to fire over from the resulting confusion. He would go onto score five points in the opening half, with that point leading Dublin to a period of dominance which saw them level matters in the 24th minute.

Following the halftime break Dublin raised their tempo. McCrabbe again off the mark in the early stages. The capital side were really beginning to hit top gear and the game looked like it might be put to bed when Paul Ryan launched a goal bound effort only to see it expertly saved by Antrim shot stopper O'Connell. Despite this Antrim still saw themselves trailing by 5 points in the 47th minute. Dublin continued to have chances and but for some aimless shooting may well have been out of sight.

This gave Antrim the opportunity they needed. The Saffs kept Dublin scoreless over a 10-minute period and rattled off 8 of the last 9 points of the game with Sean Delargy firing a monstrosity in the 61st minute. All was not plain sailing for the northerners as they still trailed by 2 when Liam Ryan saw his goal bound effort sail just wide of O'Connell's net. As the game ticked towards a conclusion McNaughton was the first of the Antrim men to put his hand up for glory when he grabbed the equaliser from a dead ball. This left the path clear for Karl Stewart to etch his name in Antrim GAA folklore as he fired over the injury time winner to leave Dublin fans and players in a stunned silence.

Daire Gray

Age: 23

The 23-year-old has firmly put himself into the frame on the back of some fine League displays. The rampaging half back has contributed not only to play but also on the score board, slotting over 5 points throughout the campaign. Having made his debut in 2019 against Galway, he will be looking to become a mainstay of Mattie Kenny's defense for the year ahead.

Laois ONES TO WATCH

Charles Dwyer

Age: 27

Club: Ballinakill

Dwyer will be looking to firmly establish himself in the Laois attack this year. The Ballinakill man has shown promise since his early days of playing school hurling in Kilkenny. A deferred year out has seen a resurgence in form that saw him score the likes of 1-03 against Dublin during the league.

Fiachra C-Fennel

Age: 23

Club: Rosenallis

Fiachra is the youngest of three C-Fennell brothers who play both Hurling and Football for Rosenallis, while his sister Liandan is a current member of the Laois Camogie team. He made his Allianz Hurling League Debut in 2020 and has since made the midfield spot his own. He is a proven competitor on both the football and hurling field and to succeed today Laois will require the energy, skill and intelligence he brings to every team he plays for.

Wexford ONES TO WATCH

Gavin Bailey

Club: Ferns

Age: 26

The Ferns man has emerged as a real find for Davy Fitzgerald over the League. Having been on the panel since 2019 Bailey looks set to nail down the half back position previously held by Paudie Foley. Watch out for his rampaging runs as the north Wexford man likes to attack from deep.

Joe O'Connor

Club: St Martins

Age: 24

O'Connor has been around the panel for several years and is starting to establish himself as a real utility player. Having made appearances right across the back line look for the St Martins man to feature in any number of positions.

One last hoorah or the start of a second chapter

As the day's countdown to Wexford and Laois first bow in this year's Leinster Championship the air around each camp is becoming thick with dread and expectation in equal measure. UPMC Nowlan Park plays host to two teams on opposing stages of their journey. However, the consequences of the result for both may well be just the same.

For Wexford it could well signal the end of a relationship that promised and delivered so much. A partnership that saw the glory days return to the sunny southeast. A Leinster Championship crown for the first time in 15 years saw a releasing of emotion that could be scarcely rivaled. Despite the joy this victory also brought with a weight of expectation the yellow bellies have not felt since the heady days of the 1990's. This expectation means that the result today will put immense pressure not only on a setup but also on the direction in which the model county is headed. Davy Fitzgerald and his management team returned this year after some persuasion from several players. This act in and of itself would lead you to believe that this season has entered the last roll of the dice territory. Two years ago Fitzgerald and his charges looked on the verge of returning to Septembers biggest stage. A Tipperary come back, and a season blighted by the pandemic has meant that barring a big performance over the next couple of weeks it could well be an episode in history that is on the verge of petering out.

While we are on the topic of relationships, the cardinal rule in all relationships is that you never go back. However, come the full time whistle Cheddar and his Laois team may put that myth well and truly to bed. The mercurial manager has returned to the hot seat he vacated in 2016.

During his initial stint in charge the Portlaoise native turned the O'Moore men's fortunes around. He solidified them with a common purpose, tales circulated of them visiting historical sites around the country for training as a pride of place was returned to Laois hurling. Since then, the last few years saw this upward trend continue under the guidance of Eddie Brennan, culminating in a Joe McDonagh win and that famous summer day against Dublin. Like their opponents this surge in performance has seen expectations rise simultaneously. A sluggish start throughout the league stages has given this fixture a serious weight toward the second chapter of this relationship. What is slightly different to their opponents is that performance may be more important than the result. A big display of passion skill and structure will leave Plunkett and his managerial team feeling like they can take momentum into the qualifier stages of the championship. A loss allied to an abject performance and the task of that qualifier run will grow more onerous by the day.

Thus, we are ready for what should be an enthralling encounter. A Championship game in every sense of the word. The league meeting of these sides saw Wexford emerge victorious by 19 points. However, as anyone present on the day can attest to it does not necessarily tell the true story of the game. Laois were very much in the race for long periods of the game, but some aimless shooting left them with an unmountable challenge heading into the closing stages.

This combined with goals in injury time gave the score line an extremely one-sided complexion and looking like the model county had enjoyed a walk in the park. This can make tonight's clash a potential banana skin for Wexford, take Laois for granted based on that performance and it could be goodbye Bob O'Keefe. Whatever the case it is sure to be a must watch affair.
